

TREMENDOUS TOYS

Clare Twomey collects everyday objects – such as butter dishes, teacups and spoons - and casts them into walls to create extraordinary artworks.

In the entrance atrium of the Octav Botnar Wing Clare has created an artwork called 'Home'. To create it she cast more than 2,200 children's toys and household items from different cultures and periods.

Try to answer these questions when you look at the artwork?

What toys can you see?

What period of history are the toys from?

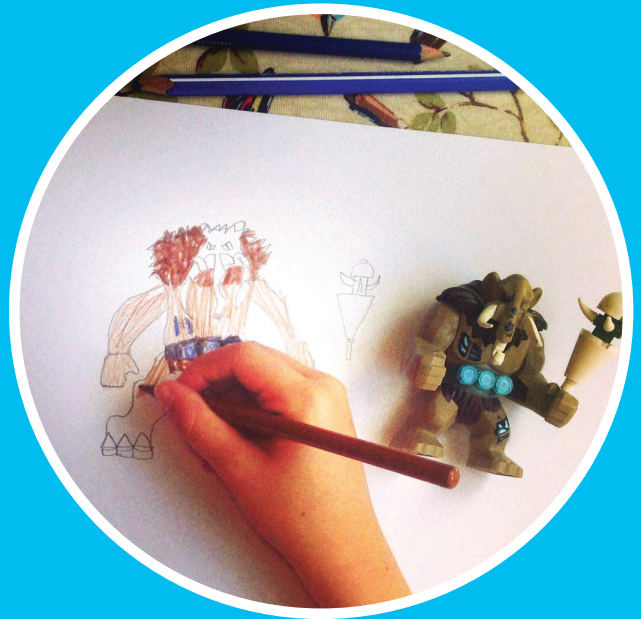

Do you have any of the toys that you can see on the wall?

What do you think about the toys being painted white?

Things to do!

Draw some of your toys

Draw a toy from the past, a toy from the present
and a toy from the future

Look at the toys in your room or the playroom. Can you arrange them in an interesting way?

Take a photo of your arrangement!
