

Baby Buddy Volunteer Role Description

The purpose of this role is to provide specific one to one support for patients – cradling babies and young children, giving much needed nurture and support. Research shows that human contact helps calm babies, particularly those that have serious health issues, and aids in their early development. Baby Buddies help lower a baby's stress levels by holding and rocking them when nurses are busy and the infant's parents can't make it to the ward. The role, supervised by the ward sister, will be 'roaming' on a dedicated ward (Squirrel Ward) and the volunteer will be assigned to patients and parents that need additional emotional and practical support.
